

Sports poem By Dan Skehan
Asking when the next match is
Breathing deeply
Curving the ball in
Destroying opponents
Excellent passing
Fiery players starting fights
Goals galore
Handballing
I really want to play well
Joking around after the game
Kind of nervous
Losing feels really bad
Mothers cheering their children on
Not playing well
Opposition salty
Penalties
Quiet with nerves
Ref blowing the whistle
Sadness after a loss
To the match we go
Underdogs are winning the game
Vowing to play well
Winning by a few goals
X-ray vision for passing
You're putting in the work
